THE GLENDALE NEWS

DEVOTED TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE SAN FERNANDO VALLEY

VOL. VIII. GLENDALE (LOS ANGELES POSTOFFICE), LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1913 No. 46

LONG EXPECTED ROAD ASSURED.

After struggling for the past two years to secure an electric line for the east side of this city, the committee which had the matter in charge has at last succeeded in its undertaking. R. A. Blackburn, chairman of the railroad committee, received this week a letter from Paul Shoup, general manager of the Pacific Electric, which assured the committee and the residents of this place that just as soon as the people at this end of the line fulfill their part of the agreement the Pacific Electric company is ready and willing to carry out its part.

The letter received by Mr. Blackburn and addressed to the committee on electric railway extension in Glendale, reads as follows:

"Referring to various conferences held in my office between your committee and myself and our chief engineer, Mr. George E. Pillsbury.

"This will confirm the understanding reached that whenever the terms as agreed upon between your committee and our chief engineer and myself as to rights of way, terminal grounds, franchises, etc., are complied with on the part of your committee, this company will proceed with the construction of a line from the connection with the Glendale line near San Fernando road, Tropico, to Fourth street and Glendale avenue, Glendale, and will complete said line within a period of one year."

This letter was signed by Mr. Paul Shoup of the Pacific Electric company.

Although the exact route of the proposed line is not yet known, it has been decided that approximately the following course will be followed:

This line will branch from the present Glendale electric line at a point a short distance west of the San Fernando road. From this point it will take a northeasterly course across Glendale avenue and the wash, the easterly side of which will be followed until the Eshelman gravel pit is reached. It will then continue to run in a northeasterly direction along the east side of the wash to where the Child's tract line meets Tenth street, this being about 600 feet west of Adams street. This will be the point at which the line will enter the city of Glendale.

From this point it will follow the Child's tract line until it reaches a point 150 feet south of Broadway. The road will then run westerly along this line, 150 feet south of Broadway, to the alley between Everett and Cedar street. From this point it will swing northwesterly to Broadway, striking Broadway at a point near Everett street. From Everett street the road will run [illegible] Broadway to Glendale, where the northern terminus will be.

Those in charge of the work stated today that there will probably be some variation from this route.

The length of this line will be about two miles. It will be seen by Mr. Shoup's letter that the railway company demands only a right of way, which will be along the entire route, a franchise on Broadway from Everett street to Glendale avenue and Terminal grounds. No bonus is asked and there are no other "strings."

Already the bulk of the right of way has been arranged for and it is believed that the remainder will be signed up for within a very short time. Practically all of the strip of land has been secured from the northern terminus at Glendale avenue to the point where the proposed line leaves this city. Some of the right of way south of this point has already been arranged for and the prospect is bright.

The people of the east side of this city doubtless realize that this line will open a territory which has long been practically asleep. Many acres will now be subdivided, the lots will soon change hands and the new owners will build beautiful homes into which they will move, thereby swelling the population of our thriving community.

It will be remembered that quite a few months ago, say, about two years ago, the talk of a new line for the eastern portion of this city was first heard. It will also be remembered that at the outset of this railroad talk R. A. Blackburn, one of the leading boosters of this city, started operations by taking this railroad matter up with the officials of the Pacific Electric company. From time to time Mr. Blackburn made trips to Los Angeles, often being accompanied by J. P. Shropshire and T. W. Watson, president of the board of trustees of our city. Unknown to anyone in this city these three earnest boosters gave their time and energy for the good of our city and we feel that these men should not be overlooked when the bouquets are being passed around.

After these gentlemen had started the ball rolling and it really seemed as though there might be something doing in the railroad line a committee was appointed by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, the purpose of this committee being to assist those who were already at work. Those appointed by the Chamber in addition to the men who were already in harness were H. C. Tupper, G. B. Woodberry, F. H. Vesper, Dr. R. E. Chase, John A. Eppinger, Frank Zerr and Mrs. Mabel Tight.

This bunch of workers were instructed to get the line up Glendale avenue, and with this purpose in view they started work. Just at this time there sprang up a faction which wanted the road to come up the Child's tract line, and for several weeks these two committees had it nip and tuck, the final outcome being that the two committees joined hands and decided to work together. The real workers added to the Chamber of Commerce committee by the consolidation with the east-siders were Spencer Robinson and W. W. McElroy, these men in company with R. A. Blackburn, who was elected chairman of the large committee, and H. C. Tupper, doing most of the work in the securing of the line.

The work of securing the line is not over by any means and it is up to the residents of this city to assist this committee in every way possible, believing that anything that benefits the community at large benefits each individual in that community separately.

DEATH OF A GLENDALE PIONEER.

Mr. S. E. Coleman, one of the Glendale pioneers, who bought land in the Child's tract, East of Glendale avenue, in 1887, died in Los Angeles Tuesday of last week and was buried on Thursday afternoon; services being held at Simpson Undertaking Parlors. Mr. Coleman had been ill only a few days. He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter. The son, Ellsworth Coleman, taught school in Glendale about twenty years ago and for several years has been principal of the Oakland high school.

REALTY TRANSFERS.

Mr. Frank Wilkin reports the sale of the residence of Dr. Crutcher at 320 South Central avenue to Mrs. D. A. Brown, a well-known pianist of Los Angeles. Mrs. Brown will open a studio in her home.

Mr. Wilkin also reports the sale of a lot on the corner of Broadway and Central to Mr. Philip W. Parker of Gramercy Place, Los Angeles. Mr. Parker intends erecting a large modern residence.

Two acres in Burbank have also been sold recently by Mr. Wilkin to Mrs. Alice Lyons of Denver, Colorado.

LIBRARY NOTES.

A number of new books have recently been added to the library shelves. They are: "That Girl, Montana," "Corporal Cameron," "The Tale of Jemima Puddle Duck," "The Tale of Timmy Tiptoes," "The Tale of Mr. Todd," "The Tale of Mrs. Tittlemouse," "The Tale of Squirrel Nutkin," "The Tale of Peter Rabbit," "The Tale of the Flopsy Bunny" and "The Tale of Mr. Jeremy Fisher."

The folklore of various countries has been procured, including the Celtic, Turkish, Icelandic, Russian, Indian, Irish, Slavic, Scottish and Spanish.

A new Bledsoe's "Law for Business Men of California" and a condensed handbook of the laws of California have been procured for reference. Both books are of a practical nature and well indexed, and will be valuable references for business men.

WILSON AND BRYAN.

Tuesday, March 4, Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was inaugurated president of the United States, the highest position from the standpoint of honor and popularity that can be bestowed on any citizen of this republic. On the same day, Thomas Riley Marshall became vice-president, the second highest position of honor possible for any citizen to attain. Thus has begun an administration by a president and vice-president and a cabinet, all members of the Democratic party. We unite with ex-President William Taft in saying that we wish that President Wilson may have the credit of giving the people a successful administration. The cabinet officers are: Secretary of state, William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska; secretary of the treasury, William G. McAdoo of New York; secretary of war, Lindley M. Garrison of New Jersey; attorney-general, James McReynolds of Tennessee; postmaster-general, Albert Burleson of Texas; secretary of the navy, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina; secretary of the interior, Franklin K. Lane of California; secretary of agriculture, David L. Houston of Missouri; secretary of commerce, Representative William C. Redfield of New York; secretary of labor, Representative William B. Wilson of Pennsylvania.

GLENDALE YOUNG FOLKS WED.

Miss Hortense M. Rand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Rand of 1411 West Sixth street, and Charles M. Lund, were married Saturday evening in Los Angeles, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Timon Owens, pastor of the Church of the Ascension of Boyle Heights, Los Angeles. Notwithstanding the fact that friends of the young folks knew that they were matrimonially inclined, the affair came much as a surprise. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Lund left for their home at 239 Howard street, this city, where they will be at home to their friends after March 15th.

Mrs. Lund is a young artist of considerable note, having for several years been connected with the Morgan studio of Los Angeles. For the past year or so Mr. Lund has been connected with his father in the blacksmithing business on Third street just west of Howard.

This paper as well as all the other friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lund wish them every happiness in their new relation and hope that their married life may be indeed prosperous.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dominy of 1119 West Seventh street announce the marriage of their daughter, Clarice Gilbert-Lee, to Mr. Russell Bert Farrar of Highland Park. The marriage was solemnized on Monday at high noon by Reverend J. W. Utter of the First Christian church, Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrar are at present in San Diego. After a brief wedding tour they will return to Glendale, and announcement will be made stating when and where they will be at home to their friends.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club will give a box luncheon at the Country Club rooms, Third and Brand boulevard, on March 11th, at 12:30 o'clock. Each member is privileged to bring one guest and is expected to provide luncheon for herself and guest, also lunch cloth, napkins and necessary service. Larger tables will be furnished for those wishing to join with others at the same table in which case the service can be arranged among them. Coffee, cream and sugar will be served at the club rooms.

A very interesting program is promised by the Matinee Musical Club of Los Angeles.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT.

On the evening of March 3, there was a quiet home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Doyle, when their daughter Jessie was united in marriage to James Elmer White of Los Angeles. Only relatives and near friends of both parties were present.

The Rev. Mr. Webster, a Presbyterian minister of El Monte, a friend of the family, officiated. The bride is a musician who is favorably known in Los Angeles, having been a member of the Woman's Symphony Orchestra for several years. The groom is connected with the Barber Asphalt Company, and stands high in his profession as an engineer. He is also a musician of considerable ability.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and supper after which the bride and groom left for their new home on Rampart street, Los Angeles, where the groom had built and furnished an attractive bungalow.

SEEING SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sale of Indianapolis, Ind., are spending three months sight seeing in Southern Cal[illegible]. In the meantime they [illegible] West Sixth street, Glendale. Mr. Sale is engaged in the lumbering business in his home city. He is pleased with the California climate but thinks there is nothing here that will equal in real beauty a morning in May in Indiana when the grass on the pastures and lawns is a carpet of beautiful green and the trees are taking on that fresh and attractive verdure and sweet scented blossoms are springing everywhere.

Mr. Sale's birthplace was near Champaign, Ill., and from there he enlisted in the civil war when only seventeen years of age to do service for his country. Although now sixty-eight years of age he has that elasticity of step and a general appearance that suggest a man not yet past sixty years.

IN DATES.

At the home of Miss Frances Humphrey of 307 West Third street the members of the J. O. C. class of the Methodist Episcopal church gathered on Thursday evening.

A brief business session held the attention of all, after which a jolly evening devoted to games, music and needlework made the time pass quickly. Dainty and delicious refreshments were then served. The last course consisted of stuffed dates, and investigation proved the stuffing to be a wee bit of paper which read: "Frances Lucile Humphrey, Robert Royal McDonald, March 26, 1913."

Miss Humphrey is a daughter of Reverend and Mrs. J. F. Humphrey of the Methodist Episcopal church, while Mr. McDonald, though at present of Coachella Valley, was until very recently a resident of Glendale for many years. Both young people are widely known throughout the valley, particularly among younger circles.

SOLDIERS' EXEMPTION LAW.

California has on its statute books an excellent veterans' exemption law. It provides exemption from taxation of veterans' property of all kinds to the assessed value of $1000. However, if the veteran owns property here or elsewhere worth more than $5000 (assessed value), then he is to be granted no exemption, the theory being that he is fully able to pay taxes. The exemption applies to all soldiers, sailors and marines who served in time of war, meaning Spanish war veterans and Indian fighters as well as veterans of the Civil war. If the veteran does not own $1000 in property in his own name, then enough of his wife's property to make up the $1000 is to be exempted. The widow of such a veteran is entitled to the exemption, and if there is no widow, then the widowed mother is exempted. Another important provision is that pensioned widows, fathers and mothers of soldiers, sailors and marines also get this exemption. It is the most fairly drawn exemption law in the United States. Claim must be made when the assessor comes to assess you.

PRELIMINARY WORK BEING DONE.

The work of installing a complete new overhead system for the section of the Glendale-Eagle Rock electric line running through this city is being effected by the employes of the Glendale municipal lighting department and under the direction of Harry Lynch, manager of the system. The trolley wire now in use is being replaced by a heavier wire which will be capable of carrying a higher voltage. The brace wires for this trolley wire will be stretched from poles which are being placed along the streets at a point five feet back of the property line. The entire framework of the wires will be new. It is understood that this is the work preliminary to the changing of the road to a broad gauge line.

INSTALLING LINOTYPE MACHINE

A new Model 5 Mergenthaler linotype machine has been ordered for the News plant, and it is the hope of the publisher that the machine will be installed in time to set the matter of next week's paper. Other new machinery being installed in the News printing plant consists of a Mentges folder, a Boston wire stitcher and a punching machine. Already $10,000 has been spent by the publisher in purchasing and equipping the printing plant of which he has become the owner. The citizens of Glendale are responding to this act of enterprise by paying delinquent subscriptions, and those who have not been subscribers are having their names enrolled. You are invited to note the progress of the News from month to month.

SACRED CONCERT BY PEOPLE'S ORCHESTRA.

The seventeenth weekly concert given by the People's Orchestra at the Auditorium Theater Sunday afternoon was the occasion for making two Los Angeles musicians very happy. Mr. Ralph Ginsburg, the youngest musician who has yet appeared with the People's Orchestra, gave a performance of Bruch's violin concerto which was exceedingly brilliant. He was heartily encored.

The Second Movement of the "Symphonic Suite," by Miss Fannie Dillon, was enthusiastically received, and the applause could only be silenced by the appearance of the talented young composer, who bowed in grateful recognition for the appreciation of her first venture in orchestral writing.

The program for next Sunday is to be entirely of sacred music, and many [illegible] Church Choir, will, among [illegible] solo, a trio of women's voices, composed of Mrs. Bertha Winslow Vaughn and Mrs. Catherine Shank, sopranos, and Mrs. Julie Clifton, alto. There will be a quartette from the First Methodist church, which is composed of Mrs. Leo R. Stadden, soprano; Mrs. Nell McCune, alto; Mrs. Joseph Marple, tenor, and Mr. Fred McPherson, bass. Ray Hastings, the well-known organist of the Temple Baptist church, will give a selection on the organ, and Mr. J. D. Toomer, first cornetist of the People's Orchestra, will play "The Holy City," with orchestral accompaniment. The new admission prices, ranging from 15 to 50 cents, went into effect last Sunday.

SHOWERS OF GOLD AND VIOLET.

A shower of golden acacia mingled with violets fluttered from the ends of yellow satin ribbons suspended from the ceiling of the beautiful drawing room at the home of Miss George Duffet of 1008 Chestnut street, on Saturday afternoon. From the midst of the blossoms soft yellow shaded lights cast their soft glow over numerous rustic baskets overflowing with fluffy acacia and violets, making a perfect picture of the handsome receiving rooms.

The occasion was an afternoon dancing party given by Miss Duffet and Miss Alpha Clement of North Glendale in honor of Miss Pearl Goode, a bride-to-be of this month.

Guests were admitted by tiny Miss June McIntosh, in dainty violet, and her wee sister, Miss Virginia McIntosh, in pale yellow.

After a happy afternoon of dancing, the honor guest was enthroned at the top of the shallow stairs leading to the music room, with the other guests gathered beneath her. The tiny pages made trip after trip to deposit prettily wrapped packages at her feet. Upon opening them, Miss Goode found many handsome pieces of hand-painted china, pottery and cut glass.

Each guest was then presented with a tiny yellow card bearing the name of a state and was requested to find the name of that state's capital, which investigation proved to mark her place at a handsomely laid table where delicious lavender and yellow refreshments were served.

The afternoon proved to be one of the most enjoyable and most artistic of the series of showers being given in Miss Goode's honor.

Among the thirty guests present were a number from out of town.

A NEW ARRIVAL.

While making a hurried trip through our city Saturday night Mr. Stork took time to make a brief stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Clay Maranville at the Rudy apartments. While here the visitor presented to the host and hostess a 7½-pound baby girl. Dr. Thompson was assisted by Miss Sylvia Cox of the Glendale sanitarium. Mr. and Mrs. Maranville are receiving the congratulations of their many friends. Both mother and child are doing well.

MONOPLANE BEING BUILT.

J. A. Hoffman, assisted by Jay Gage of Glendale, is constructing an aeroplane of the monoplane type at the Gage Machine Shops about a mile and a half west of this city. The weight of the machine when completed will be about 900 pounds, the weight of the engine being about 300 pounds with a motor capacity of sixty horse power. It will require about eight weeks to complete the work. When the machine is entirely finished it will be taken to San Francisco to be tested out by Mr. Hoffman, who will make his first flight at that time.

LOSE LIVES IN OMAHA FIRE.

A fire in the Dewey hotel in Omaha, Neb., last Friday evening resulted in the death of thirty or more persons and several others were injured. Fire was discovered at 5 o'clock and it was three hours later that the firemen announced the flames under control. Only four bodies were recovered before the flames drove the firemen from the building. Not more than a dozen persons escaped from the building after the fire was discovered. The Dewey was a three-story second class hostelry.

TROPICO SEES WAR CLOUD.

There is a little trouble brewing down Tropico way. The brewing has been in progress ever since the 16th of last month, when W. A. Hough threatened to have a water connection made and to charge the same to the Tropico Water Company, providing the water company did not make the connection with Mr. Hough depositing the usual fee of $15, demanded by the company before it will make any connection. It is understood that residents of this place have been informed that if the water company does not make connections within six days after notice to make connection is given the party may have a local plumber make the connection and charge the same to the Tropico Water Company. This Mr. Hough did and the following letter has been received by the local trustees in regard to this action on the part of Mr. Hough:

"A Mr. Hough, a citizen of your city, made a demand upon the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, on the 16th day of February, 1913, in which he threatened that unless the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, made a water connection on his property located at Tenth street and Central avenue in your city, that he, Hough, would have the superintendent of streets of the city of Tropico, make [illegible] and charge the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. This question was recently decided by Judge Wellborn in Dept. 4, Superior court, on the 17th day of February, 1913, that a municipal corporation could not arbitrarily employ an agent for the purpose of making water connections for citizens and charge the amount involved in making said connections to water company; quoting, Title Guarantee and Trust Company, a corporation, vs. J. W. Venible, et al., case No. 97391.

"The company will not make water connections in the city of Tropico, either for the city of Tropico, or for the citizens of Tropico, unless the usual fee of $15 is paid the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, without protest. If Mr. W. A. Hough, or the street superintendent of your city attempts to tear up the pipe line right of way of this company as Mr. Hough threatened on the 16th day of February, this company will have the street superintendent or his agents, arrested and prosecute the case.

"If Mr. Hough complies with the rules and regulations of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, and deposits the usual payment of $15 for said connections, it being understood that said deposit shall be made without protest, then the Title Guarantee and Trust Company will proceed to make said water connections."

An ordinance of this city states that water companies operating in this city shall make connections at cost, this cost ranging from five to seven dollars. It is unjust that the property owner should bear any of the expense of making the connections. The very fact of the water company holding up the people for the "connection" costs, is like the grocer saying to his customer, who, by the way is compelled to buy from him because there is no other grocer in the surrounding country, "Unless you pay for my horse and wagon or for my delivery automobile, I will not serve you with groceries;' 'or like the druggist saying, "Unless you, Mr. Customer, furnish my store with a good supply of drugs, I will not fill a prescription or sell you any medicine."

The people of Tropico, and in fact the entire valley, will watch with interest the outcome of the little "tilt" between the city and the water company.

MIRTH CLUB THEATER PARTY.

On Monday evening the Mirth Club gave a theater party at the Majestic, where they witnessed the "Prince of Pilsen." Following the theater they adjourned to the banquet hall at Christopher's, where covers were arranged for eighteen guests.

"GUESS, WHAT DAY?"

"Guess, what day?,' will be observed on Tuesday, March 11, by the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. Luncheon will be served at 12:30, and elaborate plans are being laid for the occasion. Mrs. Daniel Campbell will be club hostess for the day.

CITY TRUSTEES MEETING.

At the meeting of the Trustees of the City of Glendale held March 3, 1913, at 7:30 p. m., all members of the Board were present. A number of matters of importance and many minor items were disposed of.

On motion the transfer of $1000 was authorized from the Electric Light Fund to the Electric Light Bond Sinking fund to meet current interest.

A petition protesting against the assessment of No. 38 covering the improvements of Vine street, and requesting that payments will be held on said assessments until certain additional work is done signed by Emma C. Reed and others was presented at the meeting. After the discussion of the merits of the work done on Vine street by the residents thereon the petition was placed on file and on motion the time for hearing on the above petition was set for Thursday, March 20, 7:30 p. m.

On motion the city attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance regulating the use of Vine street for a period of six months. It was agreed that the committee of the whole in conjunction with the street superintendent and city attorney examine the curbs on Vine street and report at next meeting.

Mr. Oliver O. Clark, for the residents of Louise street between First and Second, requested that the black acacia be designated as the street tree on said block, and this was by motion adopted. Mr. Clark also requested that the public utility poles be removed to the alleys. The matter was referred to the manager of the Light Department.

Bids from E. A. McCombs, Peter L. Ferry, John Ott Contracting Co. and F. R. Sinclair for the improvement of Dryden and Campbell streets, Central avenue and Doran street were examined and referred to the city engineer to report at the next meeting.

Bids for furnishing the City of Glendale fire hydrants were referred to the committee of the whole in conjunction with the fire chief and street superintendent.

A petition signed by Kathryn Lanegrath and four others requesting that the trustees prohibit the taking out of sand from that portion of Verdugo Wash between Louisa street and Brand boulevard was referred to the Public Works committee and the City Engineer.

A written request from the Glendale and Eagle Rock Railway Co., that a franchise for street railway be advertised for sale to cross Verdugo Road and Ocean View avenue, near the north city limits was referred to the [illegible]. A protest signed by Laura B. Parmer against the proposed improvements on Lomita avenue, between Everett street and Glendale avenue, was received and placed on file.

A petition from the residents of Raleigh street requesting that the Acacia Vialeyanna be designated as the state tree to be planted on Raleigh street was referred to the city engineer as to sufficiency of frontage.

The city engineer was instructed to recommend a plan to take care of storm water in Verdugo canyon and Sycamore canyon and to lessen the flow of water on the principal streets of the city.

A. W. Tower, secretary of the joint committee of the city and the library board to consider the proposition of accepting the Carnegie Library building reported that the Carnegie offer of $12,500 for a building had been unanimously accepted; that Mr. Watson and the library board were made a committee to submit plans for a library building and the next meeting will be held two weeks from Feb. 26, 1913. The clerk was instructed to inform Mr. Carnegie of the action taken.

OPENING AT MONTROSE.

An epoch-making event for this locality was the opening of the Montrose tract in the La Crescenta district above Glendale when 5000 people were the guests of the Holmes-Walton company. The great crowd began arriving as early as nine o'clock in the morning and kept pouring in until after noon. Montrose is very beautifully located with an altitude of nearly 1500 feet, in the foothills on the boulevard leading from Glendale to Pasadena. Streets and lots have been laid out and walks and curbing put in and for the first time water was turned into the distributing system. The sales for the day are said to have amounted to $40,000. The guests of the day were taken to the site by machines furnished by Holmes-Walton Company.

Shortly after noon Senor Jose Romero, the famous Spanish chef, and his assistants began serving the barbecue. 2500 pounds of beef and pork, 300 pounds of beans, a thousand loaves of bread, cabbage and onion salad had been provided in abundance. Those who are in a position to know claim that Montrose will shortly be one of the most beautiful and popular of the suburban towns of Los Angeles and the extension of the Glendale & Eagle Rock Electric railroad to Montrose now in course of construction will be a large factor in the growth of the town.

P. E. O.

On Wednesday, March 12, Chapter L will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank Albright, 309 Orange street, at 10:30. The morning session will be devoted to business, the afternoon to the annual election of officers. Roll call answers will be "Current Events."

A Stirring Story of Military Adventure and of a Strange Wartime Wooing, Founded on the Great Play of the Same Name.

PROLOGUE.

This thrilling romance of love, war, patriotism and adventure in the valley of Virginia, 1861-5, has a vivid historical and scenic setting. The whole stirring panorama of the mighty struggle that preserved the Union is outlined as a background to the romantic love drama continuously occupying the stage, the dramatis personae of which are famous soldiers and typical civilians on both sides. This novel, like the play which ranks as Bronson Howard's masterpiece and which has held undiminished popularity on the stage for a quarter of a century past, is broadly nonpartisan in spirit and abounds in striking characters, with effective contrasts of pathos and comedy. The illustrations are particularly interesting because a majority of them are actual wartime photographs of famous generals, camps, batteries, historic scenes and typical soldiers who wore both the blue and the gray.

CHAPTER I.

Haughty Old Charleston.

"CHARLESTON always looks to me as if it had drifted bodily across the Atlantic from old France or Spain," said Colonel Haverill as he stood gazing out harborward from the pillared veranda of the roomy colonial mansion fronting on the East Battery.

It was early spring of the year 1861. Sky and water in that southern seaboard clime were blue, but it was the soft, dreamy blue of Mediterranean shores. Nights of velvety dusk were lit with strangely large, low hung stars. The magnolias were not yet in bloom, but amid the moss veiled live oaks already the mockingbirds sang, or rather rhapsodized in language of golden tone, as if confiding thrilling secrets that burst from stifled hearts.

Such were the enviable conditions, heightened rather than restrained by the political turmoil of the time, under which an oddly assorted group of people of various ages and conditions, and including besides Charlestonians a number of representatives of other sections of the south as well as of northern states, planned the Ellingham ball for the second week in April.

Colonel Haverill of the regular army of the United States had been a Mexican war comrade of the late Colonel Ellingham of Virginia. When Ellingham died Haverill became the guardian of his two children, Robert and Gertrude.

Robert was duly graduated from West Point and with his classmate Kerchival West of Massachusetts went, with the rank of lieutenant, to see active service on the plains in the regiment of Colonel Haverill. Ordered to Washington, Colonel Haverill and his wife were now traveling northward via Charleston, accompanied by Lieutenants Ellingham and West. Gertrude Ellingham had come on from the family homestead in the Shenandoah valley of Virginia to meet her brother Bob. Likewise Madeline West had come to join her brother Kerchival and incidentally to enjoy her first acquaintance with the fascination southern city.

Nothing less than a ball—one of the famous Ellingham "levees"—could fittingly honor the occasion.

The younger set, including the two lieutenants, had practically no other subject of "serious" discussion. Secession talk was rife, to be sure, and military activities going on were such as to lead to but one logical conclusion—that war or something very like it was imminent. But love outranked logic in that particular camp at least.

At the very opening of the campaign the casualties took in Kerchival West and his demure, dark eyed sister Madeline; also, as mutual offsetting to this pair, the gallant Bob Ellingham and his sister Gertrude, the latter a spirited girl, with warm bronze hair befitting her emotional temperament and vivid complexion to match.

Thornton was rather a handsome fellow in his insolent way and a few years older than the two lieutenants—that is to say, he was close upon thirty. He had more than the assurance of manner that such advantage might perhaps be expected to give him, especially with Mrs. Haverill, the colonel's wife.

The young people frankly did not like Thornton, though none of them had said so, and probably any or all of them would have denied the charge had it been made.

Meanwhile Dr. Ellingham and the colonel and Mrs. Haverill and the Pinckneys (South Carolina relatives of the Ellinghams) saw graver portents than sentimental ones on the near horizon. Their conversation turned upon questions of state sovereignty, the "old flag," and rights as to secession from the Union.

"If the interests of your manufacturing and shipping states of the north," observed Dr. Ellingham, "and of our agricultural and cotton states of the south are not running in harmony, that is no excuse for a family quarrel."

"I quite agree with you," said Colonel Haverill. "It is an awkward thing for a soldier to take sides in such a dispute. Theoretically we don't have to. The government settles all that for us, and we simply obey orders. I feel confident they will find a remedy for the present break as they have for other and perhaps worse ones in the past. If it were not for the slavery question"—

"Ah," sighed the southern conservative, "if I owned the 4,000,000 slaves I would gladly give them all up for the preservation of the Union."

"Well, your friend, Major Ruffin, certainly has more decided opinions on the subject than both of us put together," laughed Haverill, making the customary effort to divert the conversation into lighter channels.

Ruffin was a striking character, typical of the time. They met him afternoons at the Charleston hotel or on a sunny morning walking by the Battery sea wall, gazing out across the harbor to where the Sumter fortress reared its forty foot walls on an artificial island built on the shoals. This was one of the important fortifications of the seceding states whose status in relation to the federal government was in ominous dispute.

"Sir," Ruffin would say impressively, "if the status of these federal forts in the seceded states is not yet determined, it is high time it should be. If an appeal to arms is necessary, and I can see that it is, sooner or later, let it come right here and now."

"But, major," Colonel Haverill would protest, "I understood you were a Virginian? Virginia has not seceded."

"Not yet, but she will—she must. I am, as you say, sir, a Virginian born. But this hanging fire is so little to my taste, sir, that I have sold my Virginia property and cast my allegiance with South Carolina for the present. I have enlisted with the state troops here, and I await any minute General Beauregard's call to the batteries he is planting all around Sumter."

Major Ruffin was a white haired, elderly man, sixty years old if a day. In his fiery fanatical zeal there was something humorous—and something tragic.

Colonel Haverill, fifty-five years of age, was distinctively an American soldier type.

A veteran of the Mexican war, he was happily married to his second wife, a New York belle up to the time of her becoming the colonel's bride, some six years before the period with which the present narrative is concerned. His only son, Frank, was at that time a boy of fourteen, bright and spirited; but, as the colonel declared with real mortification, evidently not cut out for a soldier. That most lamentable deficiency—in the father's eyes—gave color to the assertion, made not by Mrs. Haverill alone, that the colonel thought more of his young southern wards, Robert and Gertrude Ellingham, than he did of his own son.

However this may have been, the colonel's young wife more than made up to the lad the deprivation of his father's full measures of paternal confidence and affection. Having no children of her own, she gave to the boy what in his infancy he had never known—a mother's loving care. As he grew up in New York amid good family associations and in comfortable circumstances, seeing little of his father and experiencing the irksomeness without the companionship of that parent's strict control, it was not to be wondered at if Frank came perilously near to being spoiled.

After graduation from Columbia—instead of from West Point, as the colonel would have desired if such a choice could have been realized in the natural course of events—Frank Haverill entered the banking house of the Howards, [illegible] This [illegible] seemed a promising connection—it might have led, possibly, to another matrimonial alliance through one of the pretty daughters of the family on whom the young clerk was known to have made a most favorable impression—when suddenly he ran away with and married Edith Maury, a nice enough girl, as it was said, but two or three years his senior and the daughter of an impoverished southern family whose home was in New Orleans.

This was bad enough. Still a rash love match is not in itself an unpardonable sin. Frank was forgiven. At least a truce was patched up and the prodigal son went back repentant, as it seemed, to his stool at the bank.

Alas, the prodigal climax was yet to come. Its beginnings had dated back even to the college days. Edward Thornton had been much in New York then. He had first met the Haverills at Saratoga. Handsome, reckless, a social favorite and sportsman of no small pretensions, Thornton had immediately exercised over young Frank an influence amounting to fascination and hero worship. Those were flush times of racing, of gambling, of drinking and—south of Mason and Dixon's line especially—of dueling. Thornton took the eager, precocious boy in hand and "made a man of him." It was such a "man" as the colonel, his father, absent most of the time on western duty, never dreamed.

Matters were in such strained relations now when the colonel and his wife stopped at Charleston on their way north. And it was at this fateful moment that the last stroke fell.

The day before the Ellingham ball Colonel Haverill learned from the New York newspapers and simultaneously by letter from his lawyers there that his son was an absconder and a fugitive. Under suspicion on account of irregularities discovered at the Howard bank, he had fled, no one knew whither, to escape arrest, leaving his wife deserted and without resources.

Colonel Haverill's grief and rage were fearful.

"I might have expected it," he said. "And yet, hadn't I enough else on my mind just now without being brought to face a thing like this? Well, let fate deal with him. He deserves the worst that can happen. I am through with him. I have always done my best by him; now I have other and more important duties to perform. I am an officer of the United States army."

"Don't judge him too hastily, John. May it not have been that it was only after another was dependent on him that the debts of a thoughtless spendthrift—for he was nothing worse—drove him to desperation—to fraud, perhaps—I will not believe crime."

"His wife shall be provided for—my lawyers have their instructions," replied the colonel curtly.

Mrs. Haverill stole softly out of the room, closing the door behind her and passed through the spacious galleries and down the broad winding stairs to the drawing room.

Everywhere, as Mrs. Haverill descended after her troublous interview with the colonel, the younger people were blissfully lounging or circulating about, still talking love and war.

They had a new and breezy accession to their ranks in the person of Jenny Buckthorn, U. S. A. She was the daughter of bluff old General Francis Buckthorn of the regular army and had been born and brought up in a military camp on the western plains.

"We're going to see active service now—sooner than you civilians seem to suspect," announced Jenny to an attentive group of listeners under the front portico. "Our boys are already under marching orders in Washington. Your General Beauregard is riding his high horse, it seems. Tell him for me that he'd better mind what he's doing or we'll have Heartsease down here after him."

"And who is Heartsease, pray?" inquired Gertrude Ellingham, who of late was developing an unwonted interest in the federal military service.

"Heartsease? Brevet Captain Heartsease? Why, he is—one of my favorite cavalry officers. You'll hear about him."

"Yes—wherever Miss Buckthorn is for five minutes or so," whispered Bob Ellingham to Madeline West. "I know Heartsease. Not a bad fellow, but the biggest fop that was ever misdealt into the cavalry. You ought to hear what General Buckthorn says about him. Wears a single eyeglass at guard mount, and carries a scented lace handkerchief at cross country drill."

Gertrude Ellingham drew Jenny aside and asked her:

"How is it to have a sweetheart who is a soldier?"

"It's all right," answered Jenny promptly. "I wouldn't have a sweetheart who wasn't a soldier—a northern soldier, of course."

A flush of pleasure stole over Gertrude's face, then died out as suddenly as it had come.

Madeline West murmured to Robert Ellingham:

"It is only lately that I have realized there are northern soldiers and southern soldiers. I thought there was but one flag, and that you all served under it."

"That is what I was brought up to believe," replied the young lieutenant, "but some unaccountable change has come about."

"But it seems to me," interposed Kerchival West, "that the people of Charleston are taking an extraordinary interest in the preparations to bombard Fort Sumter. They look forward to such an event as if it were to be a gala day."

It was at this juncture that Mrs. Haverill appeared. Before she had time to join the group Thornton hastened forward to meet her and said in a [illegible] tone:

"I must see you—I have important news for you."

"Are there—any further tidings of Frank?" she inquired eagerly.

"Yes. We must not talk here"—as they passed out together into the hall and paused at the foot of the stairs—"Frank is here in Charleston."

* * * * * * *

The halls were decked and garlanded, ball dresses were laid out in readiness, and the young people were practicing minuets.

Toward twilight Kerchival West and Robert Ellingham strolled across the Battery park and along the old sea wall together.

"Bob, old comrade," the former began, "I have something I want to mention to you."

"Is it about Thornton?"

"It is about Mrs. Haverill, the colonel's wife."

"I understand—certainly, old boy—tell me all you know about it."

"Well, I was passing along the gallery of the second floor on my way to my room when I heard a muffled scream, then a lady's voice uttering violent, or, rather, hysterical, exclamations. The sounds came from one of the principal guest rooms, as I supposed, but whose I didn't know. Then the door was opened hastily, and Mrs. Haverill appeared, looking alarmingly ill or else terribly frightened and trembling with excitement."

"And was any one with her?"

"Not that I know of. I did have an impression— Anyway, she recovered herself quickly after I had saturated my handkerchief with ammonia and eau de cologne and anything else that chanced to be at hand and given it to her. It would be all right, she said, and I was not to let such a foolish little incident disturb me on any account. Still"—

"Still, the 'foolish little incident' must have had a serious cause behind it, eh?"

"So I thought. But it may have been only a mouse."

"Or it may have been Thornton. I was right," exclaimed Ellingham, striking the clinched fist of one hand into the palm of the other.

"Then, by heaven, Bob"—

"It mustn't get to the colonel. Leave Thornton to me."

"A pretext is all that is necessary. If you don't find it I will."

They shook hands in silence, then hurried in to dress.

Robert and Kerchival were as eager as any one for the dancing, yet they could not enter into the spirit of the affair and engage their partners (as a matter of fact, these latter, meaning chiefly Madeline and Gertrude, did not make an early appearance in the parlors) until their anxiety about Mrs. Haverill should be allayed. Would she find an excuse to avoid the ordeal of gayety under the eyes of at least two persons who knew of the shock she had suffered but a few hours previously?

WOMAN'S PAGE

This page has been set apart for the women of Glendale and the territory adjacent for the discussion of any and all topics of interest and of benefit to women. It will be our intention to represent women of every class and occupation, and these columns will always be open to any article not unreasonable in content or length, but it is our intention that this page be especially helpful to the woman in the home. Articles of general interest, short cuts in doing various kinds of household work and tested recipes will be published from week to week. We feel that every woman in this locality will be interested in this page and we mean to make it of real benefit. Is there any subject in which you are especially interested and in which you think all women should be interested? If so, do not hesitate to use these columns, this page is yours. Or do you have a favorite recipe which you are willing that others should share? Hand it to us and we will see that it reaches other housewives who will be glad to try a new dish or an old one over a new recipe. And we do not intend to be selfish either. If any of the sterner sex has anything of interest to say to women he is welcome to a corner on this page. So hand us your contribution. You will be interested in hearing from others and others will likewise be glad to hear what you have to offer to make the woman's page truly helpful and interesting.

Are Schools Inefficient

One of our best known woman's magazines of very large circulation has been incessantly and bitterly criticizing our present public school system for several years and the question comes, is this criticism merited? The editor of the above mentioned magazine would tear the entire system from its foundations, and while we think there is very much room for improvement in our schools, we think such bitter criticism is out of place. Vocational training should have and is rapidly gaining an important place in the public school curriculum. It has been justly argued that as three-fourths of the children of this country leave school at the age of fourteen to earn their living, that the public school should make provision to train such boys and girls for some honest work in life rather than to bend all effort to fitting for high school and college, children who will never be able to attend institutions of learning above the eighth grade in the public school.

A man of national reputation has made the statement that "we teachers are living in the seventeenth century." School methods have not improved rapidly enough to keep pace with other lines of work. It has been suggested that the public school pupil should do actual work along vacational lines as a supplement to his regular school work, that no school can provide the conditions and the equipment that will give the child the same training for life that actual work will. While this is undoubtedly true, a well equipped vocational department with efficient instructors is a necessary and highly important feature of the present day high school.

HAPPINESS IN LABOR.

How true it is that life is just what we make it! The story is told of two washerwomen working side by side. One said, "My life is drudgery," and the other holding up a small garment just made clean, said, "My life is service." The first woman made herself miserable while to the second life was a joy. The same idea is expressed in the little couplet,

"Two men looked out through prison bars,
One saw the mud and one the stars."

The man or woman who has health and a job, be it in the home or elsewhere and who imagines that idleness would bring happiness, is wrong. Such a one will never be happy. True happiness is found in service alone, no matter of what character the service. If your work is drudgery to you, change your mind, call it service and be happy.

MRS. WILSON'S RECIPE

The following recipe for Old Fashioned Washington Pie is used by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson: Beat the yolks of six eggs as stiffly as possible, add to these three cups of finely sifted flour in which two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar have been mixed; add two cups of finely granulated sugar and beat vigorously, then add the whites of the six eggs that have been whipped until they stand alone. Again beat vigorously and then at the very last add four teaspoonfuls of sweet milk in which a teaspoonful of cooking soda has been dissolved; again beat for about three minutes and then bake in shallow jelly cake tins in a quick oven. It will be found to be as light as air. For the filling use jam, jelly, cream charlotte or chocolate. The cream charlotte filling, the original filling used generations ago in Philadelphia and Washington, is made as follows: Take a pint of milk and before setting it on the stove to boil have ready two eggs with the yolks and whites beaten separately and then beaten together; as soon as the milk comes to a boil add the eggs and a cup of sugar and a cup of flour. Stir briskly until it thickens. Flavor with vanila and spread between the layers of the cake but not on top. Powdered sugar is dusted on the top.

LEMON JELLY

Soften a box of gelatin in half a cupful of cold water and add three cupfuls of boiling water. Stir until dissolved and add one and a half cupfuls of sugar and one pint of lemon juice, straining the gelatin before adding the sugar and lemon juice.

When a man makes a cheap price, remember he has to make cheap goods to meet it.

A HAPHAZARD HOUSE.

If you are a woman (men are not so wisely observing), when you go into a house you take mental note of your surroundings. It is not to criticize or gossip (a thing the men will sometimes charge you with), but because, consciously or unconsciously, you are looking about in other homes for ways to improve your own. You have learned long ago that it isn't merely money that makes a home look well; it takes taste to get that home-look.

There are a good many ways to build and furnish a house. Did you ever go into one where instinctively you sat on the edge of the chair for fear of breaking something and walked on the carpets as though you were treading on glass that you might break any moment? A good deal of money may have been spent in furnishing that house, and yet the greatest thing—to make it comfortable to the guest and the inmate—has been missed.

But the worst home interior of all is found in the haphazard house. You have seen them, too. Instead of walls and woodwork, furniture and rugs, blending into one perfect picture of contentment, everything is individual and obtrusive. The rug stares you in the face: there are four or five kinds of furniture, this and that.

The trouble with that house is not that things were bought one at a time. Most of us buy our furnishings that way. Sometimes you will find a whole new outfit bought at one time that clashes just as much. The right way to furnish a home is a little at a time. She is an unfortunate woman who can have new things whenever she wants them. She knows none of the joy of saving or planning. A thing becomes dear to you when it represents some sacrifice, however small. An American poet, Edgar Guest, has well sung "It takes a lot of living in a house to make it home."

The woman who buys one thing at a time has a chance to study and select. She builds up her home just as an artist lays on his various colors until they harmonize. In making her selection she is a foolish woman indeed if she buys anything until she has seen it, has matched it in her mind's eye with the surroundings into which it is to fit, with the surroundings into which it must fit if its possession is to make her happy and her house home-like.

SALMON CUTLETS.

Remove salmon from can and rinse thoroughly with warm water. Separate into flakes. There should be one and three-fourths cups full. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add a third of a cup of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually while stirring constantly one cup of milk. Bring to the boiling point and add [illegible] salt, a few grains each of pepper and cayenne and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Add salmon and spread on a plate to cool. Shape in the form of cutlets, dip in egg and crumbs, fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper.

CREAMED SARDINES.

Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add a fourth of a cup of soft stale bread crumbs and a cup of thin cream. Bring to the boiling point and add one box of sardines freed from skin and bones and two hard-boiled eggs finely chopped. Again bring to the boiling point and season with half a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Serve very hot on slices of toasted bread from which the crust has been removed. Garnish with parsley.

HAMBURGER STEAK

Form the meat into balls, allowing eight to a pound of ground meat; before forming into balls flatten out and season with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of minced onion and a quarter of a teaspoonful of ground nutmeg. Squeeze and knead until thoroughly mixed, then form into balls; Use lard, drippings or bacon fat and sear the balls well in the fat. Lower the fire and cook for eight or ten minutes slowly. Drop two tablespoonfuls of flour in the pan with the meat, also a pinch of salt. When browned add water or milk enough to half cover the meat. When the gravy is thick, dish up, pouring the gravy around the balls.

CALIFORNIA JUSTLY PROUD.

This state has a reputation all over the United States for the excellency of her schools. While much of this is due, without doubt, to the public spirit exhibited by the patrons of the schools in furnishing fine buildings and equipment, more is due to well-trained and efficient teachers. And now comes the statement that the average compensation of school teachers in California is $918 per year, the greatest in the entire country by $100. Arizona is second with an average of $817, and New York third with an average of $813. The average salary of the 30,336 teachers in the elementary and high schools of Illinois during the year 1912 was $634. In some other states of the union the salary of the school teacher is far below that of Illinois. Some of the southern states go as low as $200 per year.

California is justly proud of her reputation in this respect. The importance of well trained and efficient teachers has not been fully recognized by parents in the past and the sooner there is some incentive for men and women to train for this highly important position in life, the sooner our public school system will approach perfection.

You would go slow about buying a horse whose owner's chief argument is that it is cheap.

SOME EGG RECIPES.

Baked Eggs.—Into a quart baking dish, well buttered, break one egg for each person to be served. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dot with butter; cover with one-half cup cracker crumbs, add one cup of rich milk. Bake twenty minutes in a quick oven. A good substitute for meat.

Eggs with Cheese.—Have ready one hard-boiled egg for each person to be served. Slice eggs, place alternate layers of egg and grated cheese in buttered baking dish, season with salt and pepper; cover with fine bread crumbs, pour over one-half a cupful of cream. Bake fifteen minutes in hot oven.

Stuffed Eggs.—As many boiled eggs as you need. Cut in halves. Mash the yolks, season well, stuff the whites, press the two halves together. Then dip in beaten egg, then in cracker crumbs, fry in deep fat, and serve with white sauce.

White Sauce.—One pint milk, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, salt to taste. Mix flour and milk till smooth. Melt butter in a frying pan, pour in the flour and milk, and boil till it thickens and tastes done.

Toad in a Snowdrift.—Butter a pie pan. Beat the whites of six eggs very stiff. In this "drift" make six little dents, and in each one put a whole yolk and a bit of butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake ten minutes. Serve at once. A nice Easter dish.

WOMAN'S BOARD ADOPTS SEAL.

With the adoption of a seal, the Woman's Board of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition enters upon a very active period of its existence.

The design for this official stamp was made by Lucia K. Mathews, who for more than a decade has been acknowledged to be among the first women artists of the country.

The thought, the time and the art it represents constitute her gift to the work of the women in California for the exposition.

When the question of the seal was first considered by the Woman's Board, there were some who advocated a state-wide competition. The difficulties involved in such a scheme, however, brought the unanimous decision that the better plan was to secure the co-operation of the woman artist with the state-wide reputation.

Mrs. Mathews enthusiastically accepted the task of honor—with one reservation, however—that of perfect frankness on the part of the board. She expressed her entire willingness to make any number of designs, only asking in return unreserved criticism of her efforts to put into the seal exactly the message the women are willing to send broadcast.

She made but one design, her original conception receiving grateful and hearty approval.

The seal represents a heroic figure of Columbia opening the Gatun gates to the commerce of the world. In the background an old galleon is seen approaching. The members of the Woman's Board felt that the artistic picture story of Columbia opening the Gatun gates to the [illegible] of the world was a flattering emblem of the part the women will play in preparing the exposition for the guests in 1915.

The seal has been copyrighted, and will be extensively used in the activities which will exploit women's work in behalf of the exposition.

A LOOK BACKWARD.

A conversation overheard between two gentlemen well along on life's journey, concerning their boyhood aspirations brought to the mind of the writer the fact that it is well for all of us to take a retrospective view of life at times. This is an age when we live in the present and the future and to keep up with the times it is necessary to assume that hustle and bustle air that characterizes the age. But a glance backward at times is very wholesome. How different your view of life now from what it was in childhood. The things you aspired to then seem trivial and insignificant now and the things you long for now were not dreamed of then. But the question comes in this backward look, have you gotten the most out of life? Perhaps you were handicapped in childhood by poverty, inherited disease or one or more of the thousand things that seem invented to hold us down and in spite of these handicaps you have made good, have won materia success as well as being honored by your fellow men. In this case retrospection can bring only pleasure. The feeling of difficulties overcome, the struggle ended, is a very satisfying one and you who can look backward at such a picture are very fortunate. But, on the other hand, did you begin your life with every promise of success, surrounded by all those things apparently needful to a brilliant career and having all these things have you failed to make good? If so, this retrospective view can not give you joy although it may be beneficial to you.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held with the President, Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord, 134 East First street, Friday, March 7th, 2:30 p. m.

Plans for the coming county convention to be held here April 23-24-25 will be made. Annual All-day meeting postponed until March 2[illegible]. We hope to have full reports from every superintendent and officer.

We have thankful hearts for the part we had in personal work in securing several hundred signatures to the Webb-Kenyon-Sheppard Bill making it unlawful to ship liquor into "dry" territory. All honor to the framers of the bill together with Captain Hobson and Representative [illegible]ley of Kentucky, both Southern men who stood out and out for the bill. Speaker Clark, when some of the lawyers were arguing away at a great rate as to what really constitutes an intoxicating liquor, after he had stood it as long as he could, with a bang of the gavel said, "Anything that makes a man drunk is intoxicating. Proceed with the bill." The vote on the bill Feb. 8th was 239 yeas and 4 nays, and was left in the hands of the president to sign. But shame be upon William H. Taft's head forever, he must be a brewery bought man, he did not sign; but his name would cut no figure anyway. These good temperance men passed it over his head. Praise God, he is out, we don't want such men to be at the head of our nation.

Text of the Bill.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the shipment or transportation, in any manner or by any means whatsoever, of any spirituous, vinous, malted, ferments, or other intoxicating liquor of any kind, from any state, territory, or district of the United States, or place non-contiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, or from any foreign country into any state, territory, or district of the United States, or place non-contiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, which said spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor is intended by any person interested therein, to be received, possessed, sold, or in any manner used either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such state, territory, or district of the United States, or place non-contiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, is hereby prohibited. This is now a law, and beer wagons must keep out of Glendale.

Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord,
President.

WEST GLENDALE.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Remington school held their regular meeting at the school building on Thursday, February 27. Over sixty mothers and friends were there to enjoy the afternoon. A mixed program consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Hillyer, recitation by Mrs. Willisford, piano selections by Ellen Moncton, and a reading by Mrs. E. D. Yard, president, of the circle was very much enjoyed. Home made candies of various sorts were for sale the proceeds going to the funds of the circle.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Adams of 1501 Ivy street enjoyed a most delightful auto trip recently, going from Glendale to Mojave through the Francisquito canyon, Antelope Valley and stopping at Bailey's ranch. Considering the recent storm the roads were in very good condition and very little trouble was experienced. The trip covering 225 miles was made in 36 hours. Quite a little snow was seen, the ground in some places being white with it. Mr. Adams is a civil engineer for the General Pipe Line Co., now laying a new line to Mojave and it was in the interest of the company that the trip was made.

Miss Clara Midcalf and a party of young people witnessed "From the Manger to the Cross" at the Auditorium in Los Angeles on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Charles H. Toll, who lost his home on Kenneth Road by fire a few weeks ago, is making preparations to build very shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Sauders of Ivy street had as their dinner guests on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Hare who leave shortly for their home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Endres of Los Angeles visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Klein, Sunday.

The Boys' Class of the Congregational church will give a social on the evening of the 14th to which everybody is invited.

Oil and water are no harder to mix than good luck and bad habits.

Chicago maintains an evening school of uncommon kind and unusual value. It is a school for the study of municipal affairs and problems. The pupils are working men who want to get a practical knowledge of the details of the government of their city and of other cities, thereby training themselves for more intelligent citizenship. There ought to be such a school in every large city.—Youth's Companion.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Brown have gone to Arizona for several days to look over their new ranch at Maricopa and superintend the putting in of new improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Legrand expect to spend a very delightful week-end at the Alpine Tavern on Mt. Lowe as soon as the weather permits.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the West Glendale M. E. Church held their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Walton, the pastor's wife, last Thursday. The afternoon was spent in sewing, and plans were perfected for holding a bazaar at the chapel on the 17th of March, at which there will be a sale of fancy work, gingham aprons and cooked foods.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton and their three children have moved from where they were living, on Hawthorne, near Pacific, into the pastor's study which has just been built next to the West Glendale M. E. church. The parsonage which is now under construction, will be ready for occupancy in about two months.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the West Glendale M. E. Church will meet Thursday afternoon at the chapel. A study of the missionary work in China is now being made.

Mrs. O. G. Crum of Rawlins, Wyoming, is visiting her girlhood friend, Mrs. C. A. Redmond of 1431 West Fifth street. They are spending much time taking pleasure trips in and around Los Angeles. Mrs. Crum says she would like to move the railroad on which her husband works to Southern California.

The dance given by Miradero lodge, Knights of Pythias, in their hall on Brand boulevard, last Friday night, was well attended, about sixty couples being present. All had a delightful time. Another dance is to be given in about two weeks.

Mr. C. A. Redmond of 1431 West Fifth street has gone to Arizona and New Mexico on a business trip. He will be gone about three weeks.

Election of officers was held Monday night by the Glendale Elks. John H. Lawson was elected exalted ruler. All other officers were re-elected. There were interesting talks from the newly elected and re-elected officers, and delicious refreshments were served. An invitation to a smoker to be given by the Los Angeles lodge on Wednesday, March 12, was accepted. The members from Glendale will attend in a body and have a special car.

CALIFORNIA WELL REPRESENTED

California will be represented by four exhibit buildings at the San Diego Exposition of 1915. The group of Central Coast counties has united to install a display. Previous to this the Southern counties and the Sacramento Valley counties had formed associations for this purpose. There will be also the California state building. With each of these buildings will be tracts of land for outdoor exhibits.

No other state in the Union, probably, has such variety of industries and interests as California. The county groupings in the state come naturally, and are not artificial. Each has for its financial resource products essentially its own, while in a general way related to those of each of the other groups.

In a peculiar sense the recognized necessity of four displays to present California's invitation to the world to come here and find health, wealth and comfort is a tribute to the empiric grandeur of the state. It is considered by exposition officials as representative of state pride that these three divisions of the state, each capable of making an exhibit that would be creditable to the whole state, should provide for the installation of displays.

The exposition since its inception, and up to January 1, last, has involved the expenditure of $462,242.18. Of this the publicity department has expended $17,723; exploitation has cost only $25,970, while actual construction work on the grounds already done represents an expenditure of $236,890. This is the first instance in exposition building where the construction expenses for the first year's activity exceeded that of publicity.

When you won't pay for wool you must expect to get shoddy.

Apparently a profit is not without honor save in its own country.

A paper umbrella is cheaper than one of silk, but sometimes it rains.

It isn't the price you pay, but the goods you get, that counts in the long run.

When you are sure you are penny wise, make sure you are not pound foolish.

You cannot cut very deep into the ordinary price of an article without punching a hole in the quality.

A cheap price is a poor varnish that soon rubs off.

The entertainment of music and elocution which was to have been given by Miss Myrtle Tallman last Tuesday evening was postponed until Monday evening, March 10, on account of inclement weather. The tickets are 25 cents and are on sale at the Glendale Book Store. The entertainment will be held in Masonic Hall.

GLENDALE, CAL., MARCH 7, 1913

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The undersigned became the owner of the Glendale News, Saturday, March 1, 1913, having purchased the same from J. C. Sherer, who ably edited the News for a number of years. On account of installing considerable new machinery it became necessary to occupy a larger room, so the News printing and publishing plant is now located in the Wilson Block, 920 West Broadway, where the new management will be pleased to meet the patrons and friends of the paper.

Promises are not necessary at present. Acts speak louder than words.

A. T. Cowan.

NEWS CHANGES LOCATION.

The Glendale News printing and publishing plant is now located in the Wilson Block, 920 West Broadway. All subscriptions are due the undersigned, also all money for job work and advertising on and after March 1.

Telephones, Sunset 50; Home 2401.

A. T. Cowan, Proprietor.

PLEASANT TO BE REMEMBERED.

The following very gratifying message was received by the new manager of the GLENDALE NEWS on the morning of March 1 when he took possession of the paper.

Polo, Ill., March 1, 1913.

A. T. Cowan, Glendale, Cal.

Success to the GLENDALE NEWS and the new management, 8 a. m. Tri-County Press Bunch.

PROMINENT NEWSPAPER SOLD.

A. T. Cowan Disposes of The Tri-County Press of Polo, Ill.

In the Tri-County Press of the 13th instant A. T. Cowan announces the sale of that paper and its subscription list to C. H. Hemingway of Janesville, Wis., who took possession of the publishing and printing plant on the 15th instant. It is understood that the price paid was $13,000.

Mr. Cowan published a clean, well-printed newspaper, which could well have been taken as a model by weekly newspapers generally. The writer has known him since the days of the latter's boyhood and has noted with pleasure his successful career. First, the earnest attentive boy on the farm in Ustick township, this county; second, the boy coveting an education and securing it by hard study and close application, depriving himself of many boyish pleasures that the goal of success could be won; third, entering in his young manhood upon the career of a teacher and by reason of the same application and attention to duty meeting the approbation of those he served; fourth, deciding then to enter the newspaper field he purchased the Milledgeville Free Press and conducted it successfully and well for several years; fifth, deciding to enter a wider field he sold the Milledgeville paper and purchased the Polo Press, changing its name to the Tri-County Press, which he made one of the best weekly newspapers of the state by his able management, and by the same rule of action which has inspired him in all his steps in life, —close application to every duty that confronted him and being honest with himself as well as with others. His success came to him through his own efforts and his career may well be an inspiration to other boys, who should endeavor to emulate it.

It has been a pleasure to thus write of Mr. Cowan, who is now on his way to California to make his home at Glendale. While it is to be regretted that he leaves the state of his birth, the hope of his friends will be that he and his family may find abundant health and continued success in their new home.—Whiteside Sentinel, February 17, Morrison, Ill., Charles Bent, editor.

POLO PRESS CHANGES HANDS.

A deal was consummated Thursday of last week, by which the Tri-County Press, published at Polo, was disposed of by its former owner, A. T. Cowan to Charles H. Hemingway of Wisconsin. The property purchased by him represents one of the best equipped newspaper and job printing establishments in this section and the Press enjoys a considerable circulation both in Ogle and in Carroll counties. The business has been conducted on a profitable basis by the former owner, Mr. Cowan, whose motive in disposing of it lies in his intention to locate on the Pacific slope. Mr. Cowan will be missed in Ogle journalistic circles but a broader field doubtless awaits his essay in a more balmy climate.—Ogle County Reporter, February 12, Oregon, Ill.

CITRUS EXPERTS GIVE ADVICE.

Dean Thomas F. Hunt, of the agricultural department of the University of California and his staff have issued some advice to fruit growers throughout the citrus district after a five days' trip through the citrus belt and a conference with the growers. "Relative to badly injured trees," they say, "it appears best not to prune until the new growth has started. It is best to delay the pruning until a distinct line of demarcation develops between the injured and uninjured wood.

"At the citrus experiment station last year five-year-old lemon trees were frosted. Good results were obtained by waiting until the new growth had reached from four to five inches in length; in that instance about six weeks were required.

"Allowing the injured limbs to remain not only makes it possible to determine how much it is best to prune, but the limbs and leaves afford shade to the bark of the tree which is accustomed to protection.

"It may be desirable, in some instances, to spray the trunks and limbs of large and severely pruned trees with whitewash in order to reflect the sun's rays. Wrapping the trunks of young trees with loose sun protectors would seem extremely desirable.

"It seems reasonably certain that no injury to the tree can result from any of the materials passing from the frozen oranges into the tree. An examination of those oranges which have been too badly frozen to be fit for shipment shows that most of them only partially have been killed; consequently, they are presumably respiring carbon dioxide. This loss of energy would be saved if the oranges were removed from the tree. There is no experimental evidence, however, to show whether this loss is sufficient to warrant the cost of early removal by hand. The experiment station is planning to investigate carefully this question.

"There is no theoretical reason for believing that plowing under oranges and lemons will have any injurious effect upon the soil. Some of the leading orchardists have been following this practice with most excellent results. Without any doubt, therefore, the best disposition of the frozen fruit is to spread the oranges over the middle of the row and plow them under.

"The experience of this station with frosted lemon trees shows clearly that there is a danger of obtaining too vigorous a growth of new wood when it is necessary to prune severely.

"At the experiment station there is a 20-acre orchard composed of oranges and lemons, some portions of which are left unfertilized, while other portions variously are fertilized. The plats which received no fertilizer made the most satisfactory recovery, requiring the least work in suckering the trees and shaping new heads.

"The principle involved is that the culture of badly frozen or heavily pruned trees should be such as to produce only a moderate growth of new wood.

"Fertilizers may be omitted safely from all groves from which no fruit is expected the coming season, unless, through neglect, the soil has become very poor.

"Where fruit is to be anticipated, which is the case with the majority of orange groves, according to the judgment of those persons most competent to judge, the culture and fertilizer should not be varied from what would be good practice at any other time.

"The method of segregation of frozen from unfrozen fruit, which was studied by the United States department of agriculture last season, has been investigated by the California station. It has been found that the specific gravity of badly frozen fruit decreases, while that of the sound fruit either remains stationary or increases. Denatured alcohol is the best substance thus far found, to make the segregation.

"A sufficient difference in specific gravity between frosted and unfrosted lemons will occur in about one month from time of injury to make segregation by denatured alcohol practicable. The experience of last year indicates that about two months are required in the case of oranges. The time doubtless will vary according to weather conditions. The feasibility of this method will depend upon the extent of injury to the fruit. Obviously the method has no application to orchards in which all the fruit has been affected equally by frost. This is a condition however which seldom occurs."

VALLEY VIEW.

Mr. C. Spencer, proprietor of the Brand Boulevard Book store, is building a cozy home for his parents at Vine street, near San Fernando road.

There is much complaint about the improvement, so-called, of Vine street, especially the section between Columbus and Central, which is rutted very deeply and is nearly as rough as a corduroy road except when the sun shines brightly and then it is so soft and sticky from the melting oil that it is very hard to pull through.

Will Jarrett's death was a great shock to this part of Glendale. He was a bright, attractive boy, and seemed unusually well up to the very day he was taken away with an acute case of appendicitis. As too often happens the operation was highly successful but the patient died. His father, W. R. Jarrett, the plumber, and one brother Fred are left to mourn his taking away.

Mrs. Mattie Brown of Quincy, Ill., returned home last week from a few months' visit with her parents, Robert Bell and wife, of 1512 Vine street, and her sister, Miss H. W. Faacks.

F. M. Hoopes, who was killed by an auto truck in Los Angeles on Tuesday of last week, lived at 1664 West Sixth street. He leaves a wife and two sons.

There are a number of cases of measles in this vicinity.

The new M. E. parsonage is being pushed rapidly to completion. Meanwhile the pastor, Rev. Walton and family, are domiciled in the rear portion of the church.

Miss Cora Deacon arrived at home a few days ago from an extended visit in El Paso, Texas, with her daughter, Mrs. Edna Sawyer. Mrs. Sawyer, whose husband was killed a few weeks ago, expects to come to Glendale in the fall to make her home.

C. E. Arthur and family returned to their Ohio home last week after a few months' stay at Glendale at 1534 West Fifth street.

Miss Mabel Champion of Los Angeles is visiting her sister, Mrs. Earl Steele of 1509 West Fifth street. She is to be married in two weeks and goes at once with her husband to Calerico to live.

J. E. Peters and family are moving into their beautiful new home, Sixth and Columbus, this week.

The Fascinating "Danzon."

The "danzon," which is the universal Cuban dance, is the oddest, most indescribable of dances, at first the least inviting, at last the most insidiously fascinating. Long before turkeys trotted or bunnies hugged in our land, in Havana they walked through dances. But you can dance the "danzon" all night on three feet square of floor. A crowded ballroom is almost motionless; a few steps, a queer shiver that runs down the body, a rest, then a few steps again—so hundreds of couples go on for hours. It would be inexplicable but for the music, the music that seems hideous at first, but ends by pulsating your very blood with some strange magic. It seems forever losing its rhythm, dropping its beats, while at times the barbaric rattling and din of crashing gourds wholly drowns the monotonous melody. There is very little that seems Spanish in the "danzon" music; it hints rather at Africa and transplanted voodoo rites in the Cuban forests.—Metropolitan.

A Wesley Anecdote.

It is said that Charles Wesley was sometimes easily annoyed, and on one occasion at a conference he became so irritated at the prolix remarks of a speaker that he said to his brother:

"Stop that man's speaking. Let us attend to business."

But the offender was relating his religious experience, and, though it was at so great a length, John Wesley evidently thought that no one had a right to interfere with it. He was therefore allowed to continue, but the moment came when Charles could contain himself no longer.

"Unless he stops," he whispered to John, "I'll leave the conference."

By this time John was enjoying the man's simple story, and he only turned and whispered to some one sitting near:

"Reach Charles his hat."

Only Truth Abides.

Was it not ordained of old that truth only shall abide forever? Whatever we may say today or whatever we may write in our books, the stern tribunal of history will review it all, detect falsehood and bring us to judgment before that posterity which shall bless or curse us as we may act now wisely or otherwise. We may hide in the grave which awaits us all—in vain. We may hope to be concealed there like the foolish bird that hides its head in the sand, in the vain belief that its body is not seen. Yet even there the quick coming future will decide that it was a hypocritical pretense, under which we sought to conceal the avarice which prompted us to covet and to seize by force that which was not ours.—Thomas Corwin.

The Bloody Meadow.

Tewkesbury, where a famous battle was fought during the War of the Roses, is in Gloucestershire at the confluence of the Avon and the Severn and 180 miles from London. The battle was fought on the bloody meadow just outside the modern town, and, according to local tradition, one night in every year on the anniversary of the conflict the adherents of the white and red roses meet and fight the battle over again.—London Mirror.

A Free Hand.

"You sketch with a free hand, Miss Brownsmith," remarked the professor, who had been critically examining her portfolio.

"Entirely free," said the young lady as she cast down her eyes in soft confusion and waited for the professor to follow up the opening.

Maple Sugar Trees.

Within its wide range the sugar maple appears as a predominant tree only in the New England states, New York, southern Canada, northern and western Pennsylvania and in parts of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. In the southern Appalachians it occurs in scattered bodies where climate conditions are similar to those of the north. In the extreme northern part of New York state and the adjacent district of Quebec the forest growth is often almost pure maple, and even considerably farther south, where beech and birch become associate trees, the sugar maple holds its own as the dominant species. In northern Pennsylvania at an altitude of over 1,000 feet the mixture is much the same as it is in New York. In Ohio, Indiana and Illinois a similar condition is found. But as the hilly country disappears the maple retreats to the richer and damper soils, leaving great areas to the oaks and chestnuts.—Bulletin of the Department of Agriculture.

Where the Apostles Fished.

The abundance of fish in the sea of Galilee is to this day the wonder of travelers. Most of the fishing done by the Syrians involves the use of nets probably identical in construction with those of the apostles, and the best evidence of the fishing having through the centuries been done with nets is to be found in the ease with which most of the fish may be deceived with the help of any bait, natural or artificial. The pellucid water of this beautiful lake, with its ever changing reflections, is in striking contrast with the muddy deeps of the Jordan, but the silt in that river, however unsightly to the eye, does not seem to inconvenience its fish, which are extraordinarily plentiful even in the lower reaches before it falls into that deathly lake which the Arabs call the sea of Lot.—London Outlook.

Granite, the Bedrock of the Earth.

Granite is the bedrock of the world. It is the lowest rock in the earth's crust and shows no signs of animal life. It is from two to ten times as thick as all the other layers of rocks combined. No evidences of life of either animal or vegetable are apparent in granite. The presence of lime is due to animal life. Some scientists assert that all the lime in the world has at some time been a part of some animal. This includes human beings.

A Portrait of Wordsworth.

One of Charles Lamb's friends said to him that he had never seen Wordsworth.

"Why, you've seen an old horse, haven't you?" asked Charles Lamb.

"Yes, I suppose so."

"Then you've seen Wordsworth."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mrs. Goldington—I am amazed, sir, that you should propose to my daughter. You have not known her a week. The Wily Suitor—True, madam. But I have known you for some time, and everybody says your daughter takes after you. (He got the girl.)

FRUIT GROWERS' DEPARTMENT

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Arrangements have been made for a Farmers' Institute to be held in Redlands on March 21. The program gives evidence of a meeting which will be of great benefit to farmers and fruit growers. Dr. S. S. Twombly of Fullerton and Dr. Lipman of the University of California, will discuss the use of fertilizer; W. M. Mertz of Riverside will speak on the home vegetable garden; S. Culbertson of El Cajon will discuss the pruning of citrus orchards under present conditions. Miss Edith Rich, president of the training school at Santa Barbara, will give an address in the evening.

CUT FROZEN LEMON TREES.

Lemon growers in Southern California have been advised by the state horticultural commissioner, Dr. A. J. Cook, to cut off at the butt the trees which suffered most in the recent freeze and thus allow a new growth on the old root. It is stated on good authority that many three and four-year-old lemon trees have had the cambium bark layer entirely frozen and in this case it is necessary to cut them off and allow a new growth to start. In case the cambium layer is frozen only part of the way round the tree it is possible to save the tree.

PLANTING FRUIT TREES.

In discussing the planting of fruit trees, the Van Nuys News says:

There are thousands and thousands of fruit trees being planted around Van Nuys this season. The weather conditions have been almost perfect for the planting season and with proper care in setting out, and proper subsequent cultivation, the trees should make splendid growth. There is no question about the soil. It has been proven ideal for fruit culture. There is diversity of opinion, however, regarding the planting of trees. Some urge large roomy holes, others say the small holes are better. We will not venture an opinion, but we have seen trees taken out this season, planted two years ago, that were ruined by improper planting. Ignorance and carelessness are always factors to be guarded against. There is no reason for experimenting when there are successful growers in the adjoining Lankershim belt, that are at all times ready to give advice and the results of their years of experience.

We urge caution on the part of owners in getting experienced men to set out trees; and during the rush of the planting season it is incumbent on the planters not to become careless but to set out the trees so they will grow.

This is destined to be one of the most important fruit belts in the state. Proper care will hurry it along.

The same rule holds good in planting of ornamental trees. Through faulty planting and by not cutting the cans, the Suburban Homes Company suffered great loss along the boulevard the past season. Planters should go to responsible and reliable parties for best results.

PLANNING GOOD ROADS CONFERENCE.

Plans are now being perfected for a conference of unusual interest and character which will be held in Eureka, Cal., on August 21 and 22 of the present year. The object of this conference will be the organization of a Pacific Coast Good Roads Association, which shall in every practical way promote and advance the cause of good roads in California, Oregon and Washington. Governor Lister of Washington, Governor West of Oregon and Governor Johnson of California have promised to attend the conference, which will be presided over by the first named of these gentlemen. It is expected that Judge J. T. Ronald, president of the Pacific Highway Association, Samuel Hill of Maryhill, Washington, and many other prominent good roads advocates will also be in attendance.

The proposed conference will present some novel features. Eureka, where it is to be held, is the largest town in the United States without a through railroad, and, except in the summer months, wholly dependent upon the sea for intercourse with the outside world. Thus those attending the conference will have to make the journey by steamer from San Francisco or Portland, or by automobile from the north, east or south.

COMMUNITY COUNSEL.

A town is like a plant: It may grow anyway; but it will grow faster if it is cultivated.

We would be quick to defend this community in time of war. It is equally urgent that we be prompt to promote its welfare in time of peace.

The easiest money man acquires comes from the increasing value of his home. Therefore, the most important work he does is helping the community to grow.

The value of each man's property is enhanced by the value of the property around it. It is not enough to build a good house; we must help to make a good town.

The seed from which springs this community's prosperity is the money that is invested here at home. It will never bear fruit for us if it is planted somewhere else.

This town that is our residence today is our children's recollection for a lifetime. What shall they remember?—Good stores, clean streets, comfortable homes? or something else?

The development of this community is not a matter of sentiment; it is a matter of common sense. It returns not only a reward in contentment, but a profit in property valuation.

Human happiness depends on the things that are nearest to us—the home first of all, and then the town in which we live. Whatever we do to make the home pleasanter or the town better, makes life more worth the living.

TURPENTINE FROM YELLOW PINE

Turpentine from Western yellow pine, says the Department of Agriculture, can be put to the same uses as that from the long-leaf pine of the Southeast, which furnishes the bulk of the turpentine of commerce. Western yellow pine forms enormous forests in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast States, while the supply of long-leaf is fast melting away. A product very similar to turpentine can be obtained, also, from pinon pine, another tree common in the Southwest.

Careful tests made by the department have shown that the yield of turpentine and rosin per season from Western yellow pine in Arizona is only two-thirds that from the Southeastern pine, the difference being due to the fact that the season of flow in the West is about twenty-five weeks, and in the South about thirty-three weeks. During the Civil War, when turpentining operations in the South had virtually ceased, some operations were carried on in California to meet local needs. But with the return of the Southern product to the California market, the Western operations were abandoned.

The results of a chemical examination of the oils of Western yellow pinon, digger, sugar and lodgepole pines, which have just been published by the Forest Service in an official bulletin, show the possibilities of the rosin and turpentine from Western yellow and pinon pines as a supplement to the present supplies. Economic problems of markets, transportation and labor remain to be solved. Information as to how the Forest Service secured the yields upon which the analyses were based is given in another bulletin on the possibilities of Western pines as a source of naval stores.

PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM.

History is filled with examples of noble sacrifices made for human liberty and human progress. Our own halls of fame bear testimony to the existence of that spirit of patriotism and self-sacrifice which has manifested itself in times of great public need. But patriotism—love of country—like religion, is for every-day use, and is not reserved for great crises only. Community development is only another term for patriotism. If the rural communities of the United States are preserved, built up and made attractive, the nation is safe.

ARGUED AGAINST EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, and Carl McStay, representing the canners, packers and growers, led the attack on the eight-hour law for women in the fruit-canning and fruit-packing industry at the Chamber of Commerce at a public meeting this week. They argued against the eight-hour law on the ground that the passage of the Lyon bill would hurt the women employees in the canneries mostly and lead to a great deal of waste fruit.

Powell argued that the citrus crop must be handled in a short space of time, that it was perishable, and that an eight-hour law would cause much hardship to the industry, which heretofore has not been under the law. He said the law, if amended to include the canneries and citrus fruit industry, would impair the livelihood of the women workers, restrict volume of fruit handled, and result in waste. Furthermore he declared that the women workers were heartily opposed to the Lyon bill and are organizing throughout the state to insure its defeat if it should come up for passage.

The conditions which cause the exclusion of the fruit industry from the provisions of the eight-hour law now in effect have not changed during the past two years, according to Powell and McStay.

"The sun observes no eight-hour law in the great fruit-producing sections of the state," said McStay, "and the sun has been known to work overtime, and the ripened fruit must be cared for or it will perish. Conservation is one of the live questions of the present day, and the waste which must essentially follow the establishing of an eight-hour day in the fruit industry will benefit no one, but on the other hand, will damage the women employed in that work, and ultimately increase the cost of the products of that industry to the consumer."

He said that white help is now too scarce for the proper handling of the fruit crops, and to curtail the available supply necessarily means the employment of Asiatic labor. The same conditions which have created a demand for shorter hours for women and children, particularly in other industries, do not apply to the canning and fruit industry, as no sweat-shop conditions exist in this industry, all the work being done either in the open air or open sheds.—Fruit World.

TROPICO.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Retts entertained at their home on Brand boulevard, near Park avenue, Thursday evening. Many seasonable flowers and ferns made the rooms of the little home appear unusually pretty, while the merry spirits of those attending caused the hours to fly by altogether too rapidly. During the evening games were played and prizes were awarded, while musical selections were enjoyed. The invited guests, most of whom were from Los Angeles, were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Seahorne, Miss Mary Warren, Miss Carruthers, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Misses Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley, Mrs. Fannie Marple, Messrs. Joseph, Harry and William Marple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Marple, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Green.

R. W. Olsen of Chicago, who is enjoying a tour of Southern California, and is making his headquarters in Los Angeles, was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler of Cypress street just west of Brand boulevard several days this week.

The members of the Knights of Pythias lodge of this place entertained their friends with a sheet and pillow case dance which was held at their hall Thursday evening. The affair proved to be one of the most enjoyable events of the kind ever given by this order and was well attended. Busch's orchestra of Los Angeles furnished music for the occasion. The dance was given under the personal direction of a committee consisting of Messrs. N. J. Ripley, chairman; B. F. Cook, Leigh Bancroft and E. C. Fairfield.

Just to show that there is no use trying to kill off or burn out a Tropicoite, H. A. Jennings and Son, whose establishment was completely destroyed by fire recently has reopened his blacksmith shop at 415 West Tropico avenue, being just west of San Fernando road.

Mrs. J. H. Henry, formerly a resident of this place, but now living at Winnemucca, Nev., has just terminated a very enjoyable visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. Crawford of Central avenue and West Tenth street. In the little Nevada town Rev. Henry is pastor of the First Methodist church. He was formerly a resident of the Methodist church of this place.

The girls of the Philathia class of the local Presbyterian church will hold sway at the Star theatre, Tropico's moving picture theatre, tonight, Friday evening. It is understood that the young ladies will receive a portion of the receipts of the box office, the money to go into the treasury of their class. A special program will be put on by the management including music during the evening by the famous Busch orchestra of Los Angeles. During the evening the girls will sell candy, peanuts and pop corn.

After a pleasant sojourn of several days with her uncle, George Miller of Palmer avenue, Mrs. Fannie Kelley of Oceanside has returned to her beach home. Her short stay has caused her to want to see more of Tropico and it is possible that some day she will be counted as a resident of this place.

Robert Taylor, grand counsellor of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., and one of the most popular Good Templars in this valley, was a prominent figure at the district meeting of that lodge held in Los Angeles recently.

Mrs. L. C. Rice, corner Tropico avenue and Central, is entertaining for several weeks Misses Anna and Katherine McVeigh of Indianapolis, Ind.

Under the auspices of the Pythian Sisters a class for the study of grace culture has been formed with regular meetings in the Knights of Pythias hall on San Fernando road. Mrs. W. E. Brown is in personal supervision of the study.

Last Friday the members of Chapter A. H., P. E. O., were entertained by Mrs. Andrew Stevenson at her spacious home on Central avenue north of Cypress street. The affair was an all-day meeting and proved to be real enjoyable. At the conclusion of the games and music, which occupied most of the time, refreshments were served.

Street Superintendent Fishback has been busy the past few days overseeing the removal of something like twenty wagon loads of sand which, as a result of the recent rains, settled at the corner of Boynton street and Moore avenue. Along the entire length of Dunbarton street from Tenth street to Moore avenue the water washed a ditch ranging in depth from one to four feet and varying in width. After racing down Dunbarton street to Moore the water turned west, going as far west as Halsted street, down which it ran, finally reaching the gully which runs the entire width of this city.

The regular meeting of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club was held at the home of Mrs. Edward M. Lynch, 907 Domasco court, this week. The hostesses for the afternoon, assisting Mrs. Lynch were Mrs. E. M. Davids, Mrs. Joseph H. Webster. The feature of the afternoon was the address given by Dr. William C. Mabry, the subject being, "Municipal Sanitation." For the affair the rooms were beautified with many flowers and during the afternoon refreshments were served.

An ordinance calling a special election to be held in this city on the 20th day of this month for the purpose of voting bonds to the amount of $25,000, the money to be used for the following purposes: For the acquisition of land and the construction of a public building for the use of a fire engine house and other municipal purposes, by the city of Tropico, and for the acquisition for fire fighting apparatus. The proposed bonds shall be 40 in number and shall be issued in the denomination of $625 each, the same to bear an interest at a rate of 5 per cent per year. The following officers will have charge of Voting Precinct No. 1, at 620 North Glendale avenue: Inspectors, Frank E. Peters, Lily D. Howe; judges, Charles H. Muhleman, Andrew R. Ballentyne; clerks, William B. Pratt, Donald S. Erskine. Princt No. 2, city hall: Inspectors, Mrs. Lou A. Gregory, Wesley H. Bullis; judges, N. C. Burch, Wayne V. Frank; clerks, William W. Dutton, Mrs. Orlie F. Wilkinson.

The business men of this city are preparing to install through the entire business section of this city a series of ornamental electric lighting posts. The matter was started by Major Paine, who is erecting a business block on San Fernando road. The proposition had no sooner been mentioned by a representative of Mr. Paine than most of the business men fell into line and started boosting. That's the way the Tropico merchants do. While we are speaking of ornamental lights it has been suggested, the suggestion being made by F. E. Peters, that it would be a good idea to erect ornamental lights along the entire length of Brand boulevard. There is no telling what will happen, 'cause there's always something doing when such a band of men get their heads together.

"Nix on the barbed wire fence," says the Tropico trustees. An ordinance to this effect was passed by the local trustees and hereafter it will be a misdemeanor to erect a fence of this nature within the city of Tropico.

Shetland Ponies In Mines.

While thousands of Shetland ponies furnish amusement for the children of England, just as they do for the boys and girls of the United States, a much larger number are used in the English coal mines. The tunnels of the English mines are not nearly so large as those of the mines in this country, and it is necessary to have very small ponies to draw the coal cars from the pits. The only alternative would be to enlarge the tunnels, a plan which would entail too heavy an expense to be even considered by the English mine owners. The limit in height of ponies used by the English miners is forty-three inches. They prefer to have them not over thirty-eight inches high, low, stout, compact little fellows. In the old days it was a common practice for English miners to use mother ponies when they were not in a condition to stand hard work. But a law was passed some years ago prohibiting the use of female ponies of any age in the mines. Recently another law was passed prohibiting the use of male ponies that are not at least four years old.—National Stockman and Farmer.

Foundation of Japan.

Every Feb. 11 is celebrated in Japan the great annual festival of Kigensetsu, the anniversary of the foundation of the empire by the first emperor, Jimmu Tenno, B. C. 660. The Japanese reckon their present era as from this date, and it was on Feb. 11, 1889, that Mutsuhito, the one hundred and twenty-first of the dynasty, promulgated the present constitution of the empire of Japan, the fundamental principle of which is clearly stated in its first article, "The empire of Japan shall be reigned over and governed by a line of emperors unbroken from ages eternal." The organization of a parliament took place in 1890, which in the Japanese reckoning would be 2550 from Jimmu's setting up his capital at Kashiwara, in the province of Yamato, which is regarded by Japanese historians as the beginning of the empire.

A Daring Ride.

During the Russo-Japanese war an officer of Cossacks offered to carry a dispatch which ten horsemen had already failed to get through. The general said that the effort was useless.

"The others have failed," the officer insisted, "because they traveled on horseback. I shall go under my horse."

The general was astonished, but the officer's offer was finally accepted. He started off in the middle of the night, strapped face downwards under his horse, which he guided by means of the bridle through the forelegs. The Japanese whistled to what they thought was a riderless horse. But the animal, egged on by blows from the officer's heels, accomplished the journey of thirty-five miles in safety.

"Newspaper Day" In England.

March 11 ought to be named "newspaper day," for on it, in the year 1702, was published the first daily paper. It was produced by E. Mallet "against the ditch at Fleet bridge"—i. e., on or near the site of the present Printing House square. Of a single page, two columns, the Daily Courant professed to give foreign news only without editorial comments, the chief of staff "supposing other people to have sense enough to make reflections for themselves." This original sheet soon passed into the hands of Samuel Buckley, "at the sign of the Dolphin in Little Britain," the worthy printer of the Spectator and one "well affected" to the house of Hanover. The Courant was in 1735 absorbed in the Daily Gazette.—London Chronicle.

Uranus.

It was on the evening of March 13, 1781, that William Herschel, at Slough, England, discovered a new planet. Wishing to pay a compliment to George III., his patron, he gave it the name of Georgium sidus, or the Georgian star. Other English astronomers, wishing to compliment the discoverer himself, suggested the name of Herschel. Continental astronomers proposed that the old mythological system be followed, and the name of Uranus was accepted by the scientific world as the designation of the seventh planet.

Schurz, the "Dutchman."

Carl Schurz, according to an article in the Century Magazine, never succeeded in really becoming an American. "If I should live a thousand years," he once said, "they would still call me a Dutchman." And yet the article declares that "no man of his time spoke so well or wrote to better purpose."

Free Demonstration "Red Hussar" Coffee This Week

The expression "the mills of the gods" has been used in various forms. According to "Bartlett's Quotations," the first form of the saying is from George Herbert's "Jacula Pendentum" and is as follows: "God's mill grinds slow, but sure."

In F. von Logau's "Retribution," translated by Longfellow, the sentiment appears as follows:

Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small.
Though with patience he stands waiting, with exactness grinds he all.

This quotation will be found among "Poetic Aphorisms," by Longfellow, translated by him from the "Sinngedichte" of Friedrich von Logau. The first line of von Logau's is said to have been taken from the Greek "Oracula Sibyllina," VIII., 14, "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small."

A Marked Difference.

Two Boston schoolteachers were passengers on an overcrowded elevated train one evening recently, and one of them, who likes a little joke, thought he saw a good chance to catch the other, who is noted for his precision of speech.

"Mr. Smith," he said, "can you tell me if there is any difference between the words 'made' and 'manufactured?'"

Mr. Smith, who thought he was asking his opinion in regard to some technical point, thought a minute and said: "I think not, Mr. Brown. 'Made' could be used in place of 'manufactured,' and vice versa."

"Wrong," said Mr. Brown, "and I'll prove it. Take this car, for instance. It was manufactured to carry 100 passengers, and it is made to carry 300."—Boston Traveler.

Gravitation.

Gravitation as a supposed innate power was noticed by the Greeks and also by Seneca, who speaks of the moon attracting the waters, about 88 B. C. Kepler investigated the subject about 1615, and Hooke devised a system of gravitation about 1674. The principles of gravity were demonstrated by Galilei at Florence about 1633, but it was not until the great Newton stepped upon the stage that the matter was fairly settled. The others had guessed. Newton proved, and to Newton unquestionably belongs the high honor of having shown us the true mechanism of the heavens.

Sharpening a Pencil.

"Even the cleverest and most perfect circumstantial evidence is likely to be at fault, after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution," said the late Mark Twain.

"Take the case of any pencil sharpened by any woman. If you have witnesses, you will find she did it with a knife, but if you simply take the aspect of the pencil you will say she did it with her teeth."

The Punishment of the Bagno.

In former times the punishment of the bagno (bath), one of the most cleverly cruel inflictions ever devised, was administered in Venice, where the water of the lagoons played so prominent a part in its penal system. The punishment was as follows: The prisoner was placed in a vat the sides of which were slightly in excess of the average height of a man. In order to hold in check the rising tide of a supply of water which ran into the vat in a constant stream the criminal was furnished with a scoop with which to bale out the water as fast as it came in. The respite from death by immersion thus obtained was more or less prolonged, according to the powers of endurance possessed by the victim. But imagine the mortal torture, the exhausting and even hideously grotesque efforts, the incessant and pitiless toil by night and day, to stave off the dread moment fast approaching when, overcome by sleep and fatigue, he was unable to struggle any longer against his fate.

Compliments.

Said a certain eminent actor, who at the age of fifty-nine looks no more than thirty-five:

"I try to keep my hair on and my stomach off—that is the true secret of perennial youth."

Then he told one of his famous stories illustrative of the horrors of corpulence.

"A fat man," he said, "could not help laughing one day at the ludicrous appearance of a very bow legged chap, one of those arch looking chaps, you know.

"Though a total stranger to him, the fat man slapped the bow legged chap on the back and said:

"'By jingo, brother, you look as if you'd been riding a barrel.'

"The bow legged man smiled and poked his forefinger deep into the fat man's soft, loose stomach.

"'And you look as if you'd been swallowing one,' he said."—Washington Star.

A Town You Should Reach.

The pleasant town of Get There lies far up a rocky hill, across the sands of Courage and above the swamp of Will. The path that leads to Get There leaves the pleasant thoroughfare and wanders off 'mid rocks that grind and briar vines that tear. And thousands pass along the road that leads to Nowhereville and grumble at the few who climb to Get There on the hill, and others start the thorny path and seek the town to gain, but falter at the swamp of Will and turn them back in pain. Oh, happy town of Get There, shining in the morning sun, you only show the toiler how yet higher peaks are won! The truest recompense you give for self denying years is but the promise old, yet new, that conquers doubts and fears. For no one lives at Get There, but with heart and purpose set on better things, from peak to peak they climb up higher yet. — Rural New Yorker.

He Favored Brevity.

A bishop once rose to address the house of lords and began by saying he intended to divide his speech into twelve heads. Lord Durham thereupon got up and begged leave to interpose for a few minutes to tell the house an anecdote.

He was returning home, he said, a few nights before and passed St. Paul's cathedral just before midnight. As he did so there was a drunken man trying to see the time. Just then the clock began to strike the hour and slowly tolled out 12. The drunken man listened, looked hard at the clock and said:

"Hang you, why couldn't you have said all that at once!"

After this narration the bishop condensed his remarks.—London Globe.

Walrus and Bullets.

The most vulnerable spot in which to hit a walrus is the back part of the skull. The forehead, being several inches thick in bone, almost invariably turns bullets even if solid ones are used [illegible] as should always be done.

[illegible] very in the union of soul with body than in the creation of a universe.—Henry Giles.

The Inevitable.

There is no good in arguing with the inevitable. The only argument available with an east wind is to put on your overcoat.

Making It Right.

First lawyer—Don't you think we are giving our client unnecessary trouble? Second lawyer—Yes, but we can charge him for it!

One of Our Queer Customs.

The two citizens of the United States who are every four years elected president and vice president do not have any official notification of their election. Information regarding the event goes to them as it goes to the public. Neither the federal constitution nor the electoral count act makes any provision for notifying them or issuing to them a commission certifying their election. They do not even receive from the president of the senate and the speaker of the house a certified copy of the proceedings of the joint meeting of the two bodies at which the certificates of the electoral votes of the several states are opened and counted. Nor is any committee of either body or both bodies appointed to wait upon them or otherwise notify them of the result. Some kind of commission is issued to all other officers of the government, but the president and the vice president have no official document as evidence of their election. It is merely a case of common knowledge.—Buffalo Courier.

Ate Ship and Cargo.

One of the best known rivermen in town was attending a dinner in Pittsburgh recently, several Louisville men being present. Before the dinner this fresh water salt had joined a convivial company, and at the affair that evening he was almost speechless, but perfectly happy. Further, he managed to do his share in the consumption of the viands.

When they served the ices they were put before the banqueters in those cute little paper cases, with the frills around the edge. The gallant riverman plunged in and ate the whole blooming thing—paper and all. One of the Louisville men sitting near him was appalled. Leaning over to the fearless eater he said, "Captain, look out; you're eating the paper as well as the ice."

"Oh, I don't care!" returned the other. "I'll eat the whole thing, ship, cargo and all."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Attempt Was Void.

They had been having a discussion concerning the necessity or otherwise of purchasing a new silk dress in order to be on a level with the De Moneys next door. Banks had vetoed the purchase on the ground of extravagance and want of funds, and his wife was much put out.

"Dinner ready, my dear?" he asked in his most conciliatory manner. Her face had been like a stale thunderstorm ever since the disagreement, and Banks wanted to change it.

"Yes," answered Mrs. B. shortly.

"Must try again," said Banks to himself. Then aloud: "Ah, I'm glad of that, my love. I have what the poets would call 'an aching void,' Sarah."

"You often suffer from headache," she returned in a cutting tone.

Banks drew his chair up to the table with unnecessary noise and refrained from further attempts at conciliation for the rest of the day.

Foiling Fate.

A well dressed business man climbed nimbly up a telephone pole in the heart of town yesterday and swung himself out hand over hand on a heavy cable. Half way to the next pole he stopped and, hanging by his hands, looked down at a man who stood at the foot of the pole he had ascended.

"Come on and do your worst," he cried. "Ha, ha! I dare you!"

The man on the ground seemed about to follow, but turned away at last, shaking his head.

"That is the second to escape me today," he muttered. "People are getting too wild for any use."

"What became of the first?" asked our reporter.

"He jumped into the river," replied the life insurance agent. — Newark News.

Chaucer's Face In a Stone.

In a geological branch of the British museum the visitor is shown a wonderful specimen of natural imitation in a small "ribbon jasper." This stone, the material of which is not unlike that of other banded agates, has upon its surface a perfect miniature portrait of the poet Chaucer. Every detail is startlingly correct. There are the white face, the pouting lips, the broad, low forehead and even the whites of the slightly upturned eyes. The attendants say that it is utterly impossible to convince even some of the educated visitors that it is not an artificial production.

Putting It Mildly.

She was only sixteen stone and three-quarters, so that when she trod on a banana skin she subsided very gently. A polite shopkeeper came out to assist her to rise from a box of his best new laid eggs.

"Oh, I do hope I have not broken them!" she cried.

"Not at all, madam," said the polite one; "they are only bent."—London Globe.

Time's Changes.

"You," said she as she came down the stairs leisurely pulling on her gloves—"you used to say I was worth my weight in gold."

"Well, what if I did?" he asked, looking at his watch for the third time in fifteen minutes.

"And now you don't think I'm worth a wait of two minutes."

Brag.

When we are children we brag about our parents. When we get to be young men and young women we brag about ourselves. When we become older we brag about our children.

Men have a touchstone whereby to try gold, but gold is the touchstone whereby to try men.—Fuller.

Origin of Paper.

At various times the scholars of different countries have tried definitely to determine the real discoverer of paper in the eleventh century. It is to paper that we owe the renaissance of letters. From time immemorial something answering modern paper was used in China, where it was manufactured from silk. About the middle of the seventh century of our era there seems to have been established in Arabia a manufactory of paper, and fifty years later the way was discovered to make it from cotton instead of from silk, silk being a rare commodity outside of China at that time and cotton relatively plentiful. In the reign of Henry II. of France a Greek scholar was sent to Paris to arrange systematically a catalogue of antique manuscripts in the royal library, and a notation in his hand speaks of what was then known as "paper" as originating in Damascus. The later invention of making paper from flax, linen or hemp has been attributed equally to Italy and Germany, but there is evidence that it existed prior to the fourteenth century.—Harper's.

Escort For the Holy Carpet.

As is well known to Mohammedans, but to few Europeans, the Holy Carpet always travels with an escort to and from the holy cities of Medina and Mecca. This escort consists of 300 to 350 men of one of the Egyptian infantry regiments, with two small field pieces and two quick firing guns, and about forty mounted men, together with their horses. The object of such a strong escort is to protect the sacred object from falling into the hands of the Bedouin tribes, through whose countries it must pass at various stages of its journey and who are also on the lookout for it, as the carpet is worth a fine ransom. Desperate attacks are not infrequently made upon the Holy Carpet by the Bedouins of the desert; hence the strength of the escort.—Egyptian Gazette.

Lions and Tigers.

Three feet or a little over is the real height of good sized lions and tigers. And when sportsmen realize what an extra six inches or nine inches added to the stature involves in increased length and general bulk to balance the known proportions of the animals I am equally sure they will admit that no lion ever scaled anything like four feet at the shoulder and that the height measurements of dead specimens give quite a false idea of the actual heights of the animals in life. The following are the heights at the shoulders of some of our large felidae: Large lioness, 2 feet 11 inches; Manchuria tigress, 2 feet 9 inches; Nepal tigress, 2 feet 8 inches; Sumatran tiger, 2 feet 7 inches; large male jaguar, 2 feet 3 inches; male cheetah, 2 feet 2 inches.—London Field.

Youth.

Youth is the springtime of life. It is the time to acquire information so that we may show it off in after years and paralyze people with what we know. The wise youth will "lay low" till he gets a whole lot of knowledge and then in later days turn it loose in an abrupt manner. He will guard against telling what he knows, a little at a time. That is unwise. I once knew a youth who wore himself out telling people all he knew from day to day, so that when he became a bald-headed man he was utterly exhausted and didn't have anything left to tell any one. Some of the things that we know should be saved for our own use. The man who sheds all his knowledge and doesn't leave enough to keep house with fools himself.—Bill Nye.

Turkish Justice.

The poor baker for some reason appears to have been singled out for some extraordinary punishments. It is only within late years that there has been rescinded in Turkey a law by which the baker guilty of short weight tricks was punished by having his ear nailed to the doorpost. Turkish officers of the law are notoriously averse to giving themselves more trouble than is absolutely necessary. If the recalcitrant baker did not happen to be at home when they arrived to administer punishment they didn't bother to call again, but just seized his son or his journeyman or his father-in-law or whoever was handy and nailed his ear to the doorpost. So long as somebody was punished it did not matter.

The Samian Letter.

The letter Y is called the Samian letter. It is so called because its Greek original was deferred to by Pythagoras, the philosopher of Samos, to illustrate how deviation from the straight path of virtue becomes constantly wider as the lines are extended. The poet Pope refers to this idea in the lines:

When reason, doubtful, like the Samian letter,
Points him two ways, the narrower the better.

Her Intense Sorrow.

He—I called to see you last evening, and the servant told me you were not in. She—Yes; I was sorry to have missed you. He—I thought you must be. I heard you laughing upstairs in such grief stricken tones that I almost wept myself out of sympathy.

Wanted to Find the Crumb.

Mamma—What are you tearing your doll to pieces for? Hattie—I'm looking for the crumb of comfort papa said was to be found in everything.

Friendship.

Rounder—Is Slick a friend of yours? Bounder—I should say so. Why, he will let me share my last dollar with him.—Exchange.

The man who cannot forgive any mortal thing is a green hand in life.

Shocked and Grieved Her Husband.

Jimson was a little, sharp eyed shoemaker with stooped shoulders and a chin whisker. He lived in a Missouri river town, and whenever he drank too much he used to wind up by going home and thrashing his wife. She never failed to go over to a neighbor's after a session with the old man and complain bitterly of his treatment. After awhile the neighbors grew weary of the oft repeated tale and remarked: "Well, you seem to like it. You always take it willingly. Why don't you pick up something and hit him with it the next time he whips you?" The wife considered the matter, and the next time her lord began to beat her she grasped a chair and smashed it over his head. The old man fell back in stark amazement, dropped his hands and stared at her.

"Why, Mary—why, Mary!" he whimpered. "What on earth is the matter with you? You never done this way before."—Kansas City Star.

An Old Scotch Sundial.

Record is contained in the Bible of a sundial set up in 771 B. C. by Ahaz to commemorate the miraculous healing of his son, Hezekiah. A very ancient one was some time ago discovered lying in the grounds of the ruined castle of Finlarig, Killin, Perthshire, Scotland, the ancient seat of the Breadalbanes. Unlike most dials, it has twelve planes for recording the hours and two circular planes for use in summer and winter respectively. For many centuries the occupants of the castle deciphered its many angles as it stood reared on a tall pedestal, reflected in the waters of a fountain. The interval of nearly 2,000 years between this dial and that set up by Ahaz shows for how long the dial held its own as an object of utility.

Humanity to Mules.

"In the fifteen years that I have been connected with societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals in this and other cities I never have received a complaint alleging cruelty to a mule," said the humane looking man. "That immunity of mules from harsh treatment is an interesting question. Why are they immune? There are plenty of mules, even in Philadelphia. Does nobody beat them? Does nobody underfeed them? If not, why not? Does a mule show such a decided ability to take care of himself that his owner is afraid to abuse him, or do men beat mules and starve them and escape punishment because the persons who witness the beating and starving think it is only a mule and not worth bothering about? What is the explanation of that phase of the mule question, anyhow?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Critic Criticised.

Whistler once gave a tart answer to a critic of one of the "nocturnes." This critic said the nocturne in question wasn't good. Whistler screwed his monocle and grinned at the man.

"Don't say it isn't good," he said. "Say you don't like it. Then you'll be safer. And now come over here. Here is something you do like."

And Whistler led the critic to a sideboard whereon there stood a whisky bottle.

Not In His Class.

The young man with a perpendicular measurement of six feet and breadth in proportion had asked the demure little maiden of four feet six to marry him.

"Harold," she said, flashing out a resentful glance up at him, "that isn't fair! It isn't sportsmanlike! Take one of your size!"—Chicago Tribune.

Caution.

"Brierly is always very cautious about the statements he makes."

"Yes; he had occasion the other day to refer to Shakespeare, whom he called 'the greatest English poet, according to many good judges.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Apparently Drowned.

The frequent occurrence of drowning accidents serves to emphasize the need of a thorough understanding of the principles underlying resuscitation and particularly the fact that success ultimately depends on preventing permanent injury from lack of blood to the brain. "Efforts at resuscitation should be used for at least two hours after apparent death," says Dr. F. W. Hitchings of Cleveland in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The heart may continue to beat for as long a time as five minutes after cessation of respiration, although it usually stops in two or three minutes. Add to a possible five minutes the seven minutes during which the brain may be completely resuscitated after total cessation of the heart beat, a possible maximum of twelve minutes of relative death may be undergone with recovery."
